

Creative Voice

Weekend Workshop June 18 & 19, 2011 With Hilde Knottenbelt

This workshop weaves together singing, vocal improvisation and harmony to enhance creativity, self-expression and spontaneity. As a participant you get to experience the connections between voice, body, breath and the imagination. You are encouraged to develop your voice as an instrument for song and self-expression, and to enjoy the delights of a capella style singing with others.

Expect to:

- develop your awareness of, and relationship with, your voice
- use your voice in adventuresome ways
- co-create with others

Who is it for?

The workshop is open to experienced and inexperienced singers, improvisers, songwriters, performers, people who want to develop their creativity through voice and those who've always wanted to sing and are ready to give it a go.

Group Leader: Hilde Knottenbelt is a Voice Teacher and Psychodramatist. She has run Creative Voice workshops and ongoing groups since 1987 and continues to be influenced by a wide range of sources including a cappella singing and improvising, playback theatre, psychodrama, group work training and body focused therapies. Hilde has a private practice in Voice Work and counselling. She is currently on the teaching staff of the Australian College of Psychodrama and has taught sessionally at the Melbourne Institute of Experiential and Creative Arts Therapy for a number of years.

Venue: Sophia Mundi Steiner School, 95 Nicholson St, Abbotsford, Melbourne

Times: 10:00am – 4:30pm both days

Cost: $285
